

French Cap

Question ... why would a dive boat captain drive past several fantastic dive sites and out towards the horizon? Because out there is something so special, so memorable, that it is worth the effort. Six miles offshore, where the ocean bottom is in excess of one hundred feet rises a pinnacle, like a small mountain, covered in hard and soft corals, away from all the boats and bustle near the shore. Come see the secrets that the sea creatures know, start at 80 feet and slowly spiral up the slopes of the pinnacle and see bigger and brighter and clearer vistas than ever before! Watch for circling spotted eagles rays, huge schools of fish, and the evasive black surgeon like you have never seen ... and then go up and around again, until you make your way to the top where you swim through the cut in the top of the pinnacle and local legend says it will bring you good luck. January through May you can hear the visiting humpback whales singing.
